BOOTLEGGER WAS LODGED IN JAIL

Quincey Whitton Was Arrested To-day on Charge of Selling Intoxicants Without License.

SOLD YOUNG BOREM WHISKEY

Saturday Night When he Became Intoxicated and Cut Edwards in Street Fight.

Quincey Whitton was arrested to-day about noon by City Marshal Price and placed in jail on the charge of selling liquor without a license.

The case grew out of the cutting scrape Saturday night in which John M. Borem and Dora Edwards were the principals. Borem, according to witnesses, was drunk, and he seemed very willing to give the names of those from whom he received his intoxicants.

This morning he told Wallace Morgan, the deputy prosecutor, that he had purchased whiskey from Quincey Whitton Saturday night. He also said that he could produce other evidence that Whitton was bootlegging on that night.

A warrant was immediately sworn out for the arrest of Whitton and the city marshal started out on his trail. He succeeded in landing him in jail about noon.

Borem stated that John W. Ricker was with him on the same evening and would testify to the same thing. Ricker was brought from his work by the marshal to the mayor's court and there told practically the same story as Borem. He said that Whitton had sold them whiskey on Saturday night and also said that others were in the crowd who would swear to the same thing. He said that several young men from Raleigh were in the crowd, but could not remember their names.

Whitton's trial will probably come up in Mayor Cowing's court at once.

ON TO RICHMOND IS BATTLE-CRY

Local High School Football Team Will Play Quaker City Athletes Saturday.

SECOND EIEVEN HAS A GAME

The Rushville high school football team is practicing diligently every evening when the weather permits to get in condition for the game with the Richmond high school team Saturday at Richmond. The athletes in the Quaker City have a strong eleven and the local team is expecting a hard game. They will play Richmond here later in the season and also Anderson who has a strong team.

The second team from the high school will meet the Connersville team on the South Main street grounds Friday evening. They were defeated by them Friday evening by the score of five to nothing.

DAIRY TALK POSTPONED

Creamery Company Gives Room to Y. M. C. C. For Mass Meeting.

The Blue Valley Creamery company which was to have had a meeting in the assembly room at the court house last night postponed its meeting in order to allow the Y. M. C. C. the use of the room. Professor H. C. Horneman, formerly of the Iowa State College, was to have given a dairy talk, but this now has been postponed indefinitely.

LOCAL HORSES ARE ENTERED IN RACES

Shelbyville Racing Association Meeting Advertised to Begin Today Was Postponed.

ON ACCOUNT TRACK CONDITION

Promoters of the Shelby races were here yesterday advertising their annual fall race meeting which was advertised to begin today. The program today was postponed until tomorrow on account of the condition of the track due to the heavy rain yesterday. The program includes three races each day with good purses in each event. Several local horses are entered and it is very probable that many followers of the turf from this city will attend. Among the entries from this city are horses driven by Bruce Graham, George Weeks, Harrie Jones and W. A. Jones.

LARGE SHIPMENT OF CATTLE HERE

One Hundred Two Thoroughbreds Arrive After Long Journey Across the Water.

ADDITIONS TO THE FAMILY

"The cattle colony" arrived in this city yesterday afternoon and as a result Rush county has 102 more fine head of cattle today. The shipment from Jersey Isle, consisting of eight car loads reached here from New York yesterday afternoon and the work of unloading the cattle began at once. The stock was bought by A. P. Walker, but some of them were purchased for Amos Blackledge and John F. Boyd.

The stock has been in quarantine just out of New York harbor for sixty days. Four men were in charge of them. And there have been some additions to the family too, since the "crowd" left the Island. Four new faces have appeared since that time, and the count shows one more than when the load left New York City for Rushville.

THE WEATHER

Fair tonight and Wednesday, except threatening in north portion. Continued cool with heavy frost tonight.

TO SOUTH BEND.

The Rev. E. C. Meyers left this morning for South Bend to attend the State Conference of Baptist ministers. He will be gone the remainder of the week as this is an important meeting.

MUCH INTEREST AT THE FINISH

All Republican Candidates Work Hard in Last Hours Before City Convention.

J. M. STEVENS' ANNOUNCEMENT

Puts New Life Into Fight to Head Ticket—Clerk Race Also Warm.

Somebody will be nominated for mayor tonight. It seems that it will be one of two men—W. O. Headlee, who has been a candidate for several months and John M. Stevens, whose name was just brought into the fight yesterday. There has been some talk of a dark horse, but this seems to be merely one of those political breezes which blow around the corner and is never heard of again.

The announcement of the name of Mr. Stevens caused somewhat of a surprise yesterday. Mr. Stevens has been urged for some time to allow his name to go before the convention, but it was not until late yesterday afternoon that he consented. He says he is not seeking the nomination, but that so many of his friends have come to him and urged him to make the race that he finally consented. It has added considerable interest to the fight and the race for the nomination promises to be close. However, the contest between him and Mr. Headlee is one of the most friendly nature.

Both are good men and have a host of friends in the city who hope to see them win out in the convention.

The fight for city clerk is the most interesting in the list as far as numbers go. Everyone of the candidates have been putting in every minute today trying to line up the delegates, and it is hard to pick a winner. H. C. Flint and Huston Aultman are two new men in city politics, but they are both well known and popular with all classes. S. G. Gregg, the other man in the race has been in politics before and is the present city clerk. He is also court bailiff.

Melvin Moor is the only avowed candidate for the office of city treasurer.

The city convention will be held this evening at 7:30 in the assembly room at the court house and every delegate is urged to be in his place promptly.

Rushville Will!

These Say "Rushville Will"

The first person to subscribe for a lot at Y. M. C. C. headquarters this morning was A. L. Riggs of the hardware firm of Havens & Riggs. Mr. Riggs came in a few minutes after 8 a. m. and said he wanted to have the honor of being the first to subscribe for a lot. He remarked also that he wanted the honor of being the last to subscribe. Mr. Riggs not only put down his own name but he hustled out and brought in several others during the day, acting upon the motto "He does a thing doubly well who does it quickly." One of those whom he stirred up to come in and sign up was Charles A. Frazee, postmaster. Mr. Frazee had not seen the necessity of hurrying about the matter, he said he had made up his mind to buy a lot, but when Mr. Riggs showed him the reasons for signing up at once, he got busy and brought in others himself.

The second to subscribe was John B. Winship. He remarked in signing "Rushville must." One man met a friend on the street and pointing to

ARE IN STORM SWEEP DISTRICT

Gilbert Meredith and Son Tom Only About Forty Miles From Key West.

NO WORD RECEIVED HERE YET

And Mrs. Meredith Has Spent an Anxious Day—Believes Relatives Are Safe.

Gilbert Meredith and son Tom of this city are in the storm swept district, near Key West, and Mrs. Meredith spent a very anxious day hoping to hear something from them.

Press reports contain few details of the damage done by the storm, and what details are given concern damage to property principally. Mrs. Meredith does not think that anything serious has happened to Mr. Meredith or her son, and although she feels that they would have telegraphed her if they were safe she has not received any word from them. This is easily explained though by the fact that the wires are down and it is probable they could get no message through since they were not where they would have direct communication. The storm damage seems to have been heaviest at Key West, and the two men were about forty miles from the island.

Another report is to the effect that gangs of railway workmen had been expecting a big blow and it is thought that they were prepared for it and had kept in places which were as safe as possible.

In spite of her assurance that her husband and son are safe Mrs. Meredith has been very uneasy and probably will be until she hears something definite from them. It is hoped that this word may reach her late today or early tomorrow.

BURIAL IN INDIANAPOLIS

Mrs. Thomas Smiley Died in Asheville, N. C., Saturday.

The body of Mrs. Thomas E. Smiley, who died of tuberculosis in Asheville, N. C., Saturday, arrived in Indianapolis today, where burial will be made. Dr. W. H. Smith and B. L. Smith of this city, nephews of the deceased, received word of her death yesterday.

IN A SERIOUS CONDITION

Mrs. Mary Megee May Not Recover From Fall.

Mrs. Mary A. Megee who fell at her home east of this city about five weeks ago and severely injured one of her hips is in a serious condition. On account of her extreme age not much hope is entertained for her recovery. She is the widow of Absalom Megee and the mother of Oliver and Frank Megee living east of this city who are cattle breeders.

BOREM RELEASED ON A GOOD BOND

Man Who Cut Dora Edwards Profits by the Sympathy For His Family.

WAIVES PRELIMINARY HEARING

John M. Borem, who was arrested Sunday morning after cutting Dora Edwards Saturday night in a street brawl, was arraigned in Mayor Cowing's court this morning on the charge of assault and battery. His preliminary hearing was waived and he was bound over to the circuit court. Before the case could be brought before the court it was necessary to change the style of the affidavit which read John R. Borem. This is the name of the father and mistake was made yesterday in making out the document, the only difference being the middle initial. The young man was released on a five hundred dollar bond.

Much sympathy is expressed for the family of young Borem. They are very highly respected people, all being earnest and sincere workers in the Main Street Christian church. Dora Edwards, who was injured by the knife wounds is gradually improving and will be able to be out in a short time.

Watson, Titsworth & Green and B. F. Miller are attorneys for the defendant. They spent much of the morning getting signers for young Borem's bond. Those who signed were George C. Wyatt, John B. Winship, A. B. Flinn and many others were willing to.

ADDRESS MADE BY JUDGE SPARKS

Speaks at the Rally Day Service at the Methodist Sunday School in Greenfield.

THINKS ADULTS SHOULD GO

Speaking of the rally day service at the M. E. Sunday school the Greenfield Tribune says:

The address of the day was made by the Hon Wm. M. Sparks of Rushville, judge of the Rush and Shelby county circuit courts. He is a younger brother of Dr. J. W. Sparks of this city. His address took the service. Although his address was necessarily short, it was pointed and practical and stirring to a marked degree.

Judge Sparks believes the Sunday school is for the fathers and mothers as well as for the children, and said that the problem of moral reform, law enforcement, etc., would be solved when fathers and mothers accompanied their children to Sunday school and the church services regularly and studied the Bible as a guide for their lives.

PEOPLE LAUGH AND THEN CHEER

Enthusiastic Crowd Packs Assembly Room and Hears Facts About New Factories.

PARADE IS HEADED BY BAND

First Big Gathering Since Boosters Began Work is Success and Lot Sale Starts.

The meeting of citizens at the assembly room of the court house last evening was one which entirely filled the room and at the same time a large crowd stood in the corridors, notwithstanding the forbidding weather.

At 7 p. m. many of the members of the Y. M. C. C. congregated at the headquarters. Many other citizens also called there, inspected the exhibits and especially the three kitchen cabinets which had just arrived from one factory which has contracted to locate here. The members of the Y. M. C. C. were marshalled in a parade by Fred A. Caldwell, president of the club. The Rushville city band, leading the parade, played "A Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight," and "Marching Through Georgia." The parade marched north in Morgan street, east in Third to Main, and south in Main to the court house.

The meeting was called to order by Fred A. Caldwell who explained the purposes of the meeting. At the close of his remarks Mr. Caldwell introduced Mayor H. M. Cowing as the presiding officer, who called upon the Rev. W. H. Clark for the opening invocation.

In his prayer, the Rev. Mr. Clark spoke eloquently of the rich and fruitful country with which God has blessed the people of Rush county, and invoked the blessings of Providence upon the efforts of the Young Men's Commercial Club to afford better opportunities for labor and to improve the industrial conditions of the community, thus bringing increased happiness to many homes, as well as increasing the strength of those who exercised themselves in this good work.

Mayor Cowing in his address expressed his pleasure at the honor conferred upon him by the Young Men's Commercial Club in asking him to preside at a meeting of citizens called for so noble a purpose. He spoke of the manner in which the community had advanced in many ways and had achieved many things. From the personnel of the Y. M. C. C. he felt sure that its members were doing their great work with the single unselfish purpose of benefiting and improving Rushville, that they had fully investigated the manufacturing concerns which had contracted to come here and that they would not in any manner impose anything upon the people which was not all right in every respect. He believed the movement a good one, worthy of the encouragement and co-operation of every citizen and that from it Rushville would prosper more than ever before. The prediction of 15,000 for Rushville within four years, he believed, would be amply fulfilled. He announced that the lot sale for the purpose of getting factories would begin this morning. He said that it was the duty of citizens to support this sale and if any could not buy lots they could interest themselves in getting others able to buy to do so.

The ladies glee club, composed of Miss Georgia Wyatt, Miss Nannie Hogsett, Miss Rubie Norris, Miss Frankie Clark and Miss Marie Clark, with Miss Florence Frazee at the piano, sang the "Battle Hymn of the Republic." The admirable rendering

KEY WEST UNDER MARTIAL LAW

Looting Suppressed in Storm-Wrecked City.

HALF THE TOWN IS IN RUINS

West India Hurricane Which Swept Up to the Northeast, Caught the Tip of Florida and Left Key West a Mass of Wreckage, the Loss Being Estimated at About $2,000,000—Plunderers at Once Began Their Work and the Town Was Placed Under Strict Guard.

Key West, Fla., Oct. 12.—As a result of the West Indian hurricane which rushed up from the gulf Monday this city is a mass of wreckage. At least one-half of the island city is in ruins, the property loss being estimated at about $2,000,000. State troops are patrolling the streets in order to prevent looting. The city officials have asked the United States to allow the regular troops to be used as guards until order is restored. So far as known no human life has been lost.

The hurricane is the worst that Key West has ever experienced. Of one hundred local vessels in the harbor but five remain at anchor, the others having either gone to sea or been washed upon the beaches. The streets along the water front are a mass of wreckage.

Brick as well as frame buildings throughout the city suffered alike from the fury of the hurricane and many miraculous escapes from death and serious injury have been reported.

Besides the several score of residences either totally wrecked or blown from their foundations, nine factories were partially destroyed. The top of the First National bank was blown off, the postoffice damaged and the running gears of the government coaling station wrecked. Every telephone and electric light pole on Duval street, the principal thoroughfare of the city, was blown down.

As soon as the wind had subsided, plundering began. The city police force was unable to cope with the situation, and the mayor decided to take stringent measures to suppress the looting, his proclamation of martial law resulting. Almost every nationality is represented among the city's population of more than 20,000, about one-half of whom are employed in the cigar manufactories, sponge fisheries and salvage companies.

HAVANA HARD HIT

Ten Lives Were Lost and Damage Done to Amount of Millions.

Havana, Oct. 12.—Ten persons were killed and twenty-three injured by a cyclone which struck Havana yesterday. Property damage to the amount of a million dollars was also done by the storm. The cyclone swept over the Isle of Pines and entered Cuba southwest of Havana, the vortex passing a little to the west of the city. Small vessels in the harbor were seriously damaged and many schooners, lighters and tugs were blown from their moorings and wrecked on the east shore.

Welcome News on Gulf Coast.

Mobile, Ala., Oct. 12.—Although not the slightest indications of an approaching hurricane had been noted here, there was much apprehension and the news at 10 o'clock last night that the weather bureau had ordered the hurricane warnings for all gulf points rescinded, was welcome information to the residents of this city.

OFF TO EL PASO

President Diaz Starts Out to Meet His Northern Neighbor.

Mexico City, Oct. 12.—President Diaz left this city last evening at 6 o'clock on the presidential train. He will proceed to Chihuahua, where he will be entertained for two days. From that city he will go to El Paso to meet President Taft.

A salute of twenty-one guns and all the military honors of his station were accorded the president as his train pulled out. A pilot train preceded the president's special. President Diaz was accompanied by his staff and the minister of war and marine.

Riding Through Orange Groves.

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 12.—President Taft was the guest of honor at a banquet last evening at the Shriners' auditorium, which, in point of numbers and in lavishness of decoration, proved to be one of the distinctive features of his trip. Today the president was taken for an automobile ride to Pasadena and through the orange districts of Riverside.

Still Unsettled.

Washington, Oct. 12.—Today probably will see the determination of the question whether Charles R. Crane will be requested to resign his recently acquired office of minister of the United States to China, or will be permitted to resume in that capacity his journey to Peking.

SEES HER ERROR

Baltimore Girl Brought to Her Senses by Court.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 12.—When the girl agreed to return to her mother and the man with whom she was arrested agreed to return to his wife in Baltimore, whom he had deserted for the singer, the efforts of a pretty Baltimore girl to break away from home and sing on the stage culminated in the police court here.

The sixteen-year-old girl is Mrs. Van E. Williams. Several weeks ago her parents reached the conclusion that she was too wayward and decided to place her in the House of the Good Shepherd in Baltimore. Someone told her that if she were married she would no longer be under her parents' control. The girl asked Van E. Williams of Elliott City, Md., to marry her, and he obligingly consented. The couple separated shortly after the ceremony.

On account of her marriage the authorities declined to send her back to the reformatory. The girl began her stage career in a cheap theater in Baltimore, where she met Paul E. Reese, a married man, twenty-six years old, manager of the theater. He became infatuated with her and both came to Washington. Saturday Mrs. Myra Daniels, mother of the girl, and Mrs. Reese, the wife, came to Washington. That night the couple were arrested at a hotel where they were living as man and wife. They were charged with adultery. The charge was withdrawn in the police court today on condition that Reese would return to his wife and a promise from the girl that she would not sing in any public place unless accompanied by her mother.

is not the only sign of defective eyesight. Nervousness, loss of sleep, indigestion, a sore throat, the disagreeable consequences of eye strain. However, there is an almost unfailing remedy for such a condition—a pair of well-fitted glasses. Remember it is more important to have glasses fit your vision than to have your clothes fit your form. We give accurate fitting special attention.

Peoples' Column

To the Editor:

In the Rushville Daily Republican of Oct. 5 is an article evidently by the editor in which he comments on the misunderstanding over the location of the high school in Center township. They offer the suggestion that the matter should be settled once for all as soon as possible to which we say amen. It is a fact generally accepted that the high school will be in the building now nearing completion on the site of the old graded school house. About the middle of September there was printed in the same paper, (Daily Republican) an article which was incorrect in some statements and unfair to the trustee.

In the article mentioned it said there were thirteen high school scholars living in Mays. There is only six. The same piece is made to say that nearly one half the high school students live in Mays which is not true.

Neither was their petition presented before the teacher was hired, as the teacher Prof. John Geraghty had been hired month's before this time.

In the interest of harmony and good feeling the trustee did agree to have the high school at Mays until the building being erected was completed; if they would agree to a change to the new building when it was finished. They said they wanted the high school at Mays for all time to come. That sounded like a long time and being opposed to the foolish and preposterous plan of two high schools so near each other a condition that would result in added expense and multiplied annoyance be a continual source of discord and prevent either from accomplishing the good that one would. The township high school is at Hickory church a good building about two and three-fourths miles from Mays.

A big majority of the people of Center township believe in local self government in local affairs.

We would welcome disinterested outside did that would be helpful in creating and upbuilding but we do protest against this outside supposed authority that disturbs and prolongs the adjustment of a local affair.

We are now having built where the old one stood a brick school house intended to accommodate all the high school students in the township. We propose that it shall meet all the law's requirements and we desire the friendship and co-operation of every boy and girl that we may secure a better condition.

A CITIZEN.

(Editor's Note—The writer went into the history of the case and said unfair methods were used to get the old building condemned. However, owing to limited space it will be impossible to go over the facts in the case again.

FORMER ICE KING DUE FOR THE PEN

Sentence Against Charles W. Morse Sustained.

New York, Oct. 12.—Charles W. Morse, one time "ice king," coastwise steamship line organizer, banker and capitalist, will serve fifteen years at hard labor in the federal prison at Atlanta, Ga., unless the supreme court of the United States reverses the decision or the president of the United States interferes. After having been at liberty under $125,000 bail since June 17 last, he is back in the Tombs prison, where he contemplates the decision of the United States circuit court of appeals sustaining the judgment of the lower federal court, which found him guilty in November last of violating the national banking laws.

There was solace in the decision of the court of appeals, however, in that only ten of the fifty-three indictments on which he was convicted were sustained, and on the strength of this his counsel will immediately carry the case before the United States supreme court on a writ of certiorari. To this end the United States court of appeals has granted a forty days' stay of execution and pending a decision by the supreme court application will be made to have the prisoner again admitted to bail.

Morse took this decision calmly, though he was plainly grief-stricken and perhaps surprised. One of Morse's keenest regrets at being forced to return to prison is the interruption of his beaver-like struggle to rebuild his fortune. Since his liberation under bail he had been re-elected president of the Metropolitan Steamship company, a New England corporation, and of the Hudson Navigation company, operating a line of boats on the Hudson. He is credited with having discharged the bulk of his debts.

Starting Out Young.

Lawrence, Kan., Oct. 12.—Earl Bullock, an eighteen-year-old desperado, robbed the State Bank at Eudora and later perhaps fatally wounded Policeman Wilson Pringle, who attempted to arrest him at his mother's home here. He then made his escape.

With proper knowledge of what is best, each hour of recreation, of enjoyment, of contemplation and of effort may be made to contribute to living aright. Then the use of medicines may be dispensed with to advantage, but under ordinary conditions in many instances a simple, wholesome remedy may be invaluable if taken at the proper time and the California Fig Syrup Co. holds that it is alike important to present the subject truthfully and to supply the one perfect laxative to those desiring it.

Geraghty Pleased With Old New York

And Just to Think He Has Escaped Horrid Motorcycles

My dear Mr. Feudner:

Another good thing about New York is that I have seen but one motorcycle during my first six weeks residence here. Aside from that I find human nature is pretty much the same the world over. I say, "the world over," for when one has elbowed with this heterogeneous mess and beef stew of humanity here, one has really seen real breathing pictures from life that is cosmopolitan in the broadest sense of the word. I have learned to have a high regard for that world-wide human nature dope you used to dish out to me when all Rushville was asleep.

Those country pictures of Emile Zola, for instance, dealing with the life of the French peasantry. I see it all forcibly exemplified here on every hand. For five cents one can buy a street car ticket which will take one to a community peopled by any nationality of your own choosing. They cluster up together in some little nook of the great metropolis and live there pretty much after their old ways in their fatherland.

Chinatown, for instance. When you get within two blocks of that place you can detect the odor of fresh tea leaves. Closer still, and you get a whiff of the inevitable punk stick, and then the obnoxious odor of ill-smelling Celestial food-stuffs. There they have their own Joss house, theatre, church and similar institutions. To visitors guides point out the house where Elsie Siegel was murdered. I have been down there several times after midnight on stories, and truly it is most interesting.

Then there are the Jews with their own quarters, traditions, street games, etc., and everywhere you find them on stoops and in the street reading their Jewish newspaper.

Little use for me, I guess, to say anything about the Hudson-Fulton celebration. Suffice to say it was one great, grand affair beyond the power of description. And fortunately, I saw all of it. From the monster pageants, street and water, to the banquets and dinners at night. Just imagine 12 miles of people lined up on both sides of the Hudson, fighting and scrambling for a good point of vantage, trying to get a glimpse of the first day parade, the naval affair; with the war dogs of all nations bellowing out to salute to the replica of the Half Moon and Clermont, and then you can get a faint idea of the doings. And on top of all that, every sort of a water craft you ever saw. For the Herald I got this assignment: "Geraghty, you take care of a good story on the crowds and incidents tomorrow." With the pride of a boy carrying in his first cord of wood, and earning a quarter, I went out to that task. Heretofore, the biggest "crowd story" I ever handled was on Thursday of the county fair—and then I always felt that I had to use foot ease to get away with it right. Here were assembled millions of people. But it was a great day for fishing and I turned in with a long line of interesting incidents and "color" for an opening paragraph.

I was standing near Governor Hughes when the crowd pushed the Japanese Prince Kuni forward and he fell. Then the police lifted the diminutive package of royalty over a wire fence and his silk tile fell off. The governor rushed to the side of the Prince and apologized for such treatment. To me the common people are more interesting—these "so-called" common people.

I remember what Lincoln said: "God surely must have loved the common people—he made so many of them." I am inclined to believe that human interest stories about the "herd" is what people like—at least I do. It's just this: "People like to read about just folks." Like I wrote to a friend of mine in Rushville the other day, New York is surprising in this respect—there are so many prominent men living here that they themselves feel insignificant. They are not half so cold, distanced and stoic as the "big men" of the small towns and cities. Maybe, that's why they are great. Maybe true greatness carries along with it broadness and democracy.

The other afternoon I went to Governor's island in a yacht to cover a big reception tendered the visiting admirals by the military. When I returned to the office the city editor greeted me with a smile and a query: "I suppose you are going to write two columns about the affair, eh? Well, we only want half a column. (I must confess I did have some big things in mind.) Here, you will have to learn that there are so many gatherings of celebrities that they cease to be little more than commonplace. Besides the British, French, Italian and American admirals at the reception, there was Prince Kuni and his royal retinue, Lord Beresford and daughter, Marconi, the inventor, Glen Curtiss, the aeronaut, ambassadors from every country in the world, the Chamberlain to the King of Spain, the Turkish envoy, Mrs. Alfred G. Vanderbilt and a long list of others. The only thing I didn't exactly like was the bowing and kowtowing I had to do when Major General Wood, commanding the army in the east, presented us as we passed along the line, to Prince Kuni. I gave him a Jack Crush salaam and passed on. Honestly I didn't feel a bit disconcerted—nor near as much as attending an afternoon session of the Ladies Musicales at Mrs. Gilbert's.

When we go out on a story like that we don't do anything else all day. So I just spent the afternoon with the "cream de la cream."

The most interesting one I found besides a Moor in a native dress, sort of a pillow slip—was a Miss Harmon from Ohio. As far as I know, I think she was the only one from the Middle West there. I didn't buy her photograph or ask her for her life's history, but I think she is the governor's daughter. At least she ought to be. She assisted me in obtaining some of the names of the society butterflies and caterpillars.

When Wilbur Wright first came to New York and was assembling his aeroplane on the government's private grounds. I was sent out to see him. There was an army of newspaper men there standing beyond a picket line established by the military. No one was allowed to pass the line without permission from the officer of the day and this privilege had been denied everyone by Wright who was very busy. However, after "warming up" to one of the guards I sent my card in past the lines and wrote on it "A fellow exile from the Sixth congressional district, where you were born." The surprised guard came back and said Mr. Wright would see me. And I spent the remainder of the afternoon with him and his mechanician. "If you want to hear the most profound silence you ever heard in your life, by all means, hear Wilbur Wright's"—some newspaper wag wrote. And it is the truth. He is not only reticent, but really it is painful. But when I informed him I knew Mrs. Cora Dillon, his first cousin, back in Rush county, he smiled, put down his monkey wrench and we had quite a talk. Soon I found myself tightening bolts, holding propellers in position and making myself generally useful about the place. He is surely a most interesting chap and all of New York is wild about him.

Dr. Frederick Cook, the North Pole discoverer, I have met on several occasions. He has been the guest of honor at many banquets here.

Dr Cook was given the greatest ovation accorded anyone that ever stepped his foot inside the New York Herald office. He came one night and shook hands with all the fellows, from the "keeper of the towel" to the managing editor. Peary was given the cold shoulder in New York. He has acted, in this matter, like a certain defeated candidate for sheriff I knew back home. When the word was given out that Harry Whitney, to whom Dr. Cook intrusted his data and instruments, was in town, I was sent over to the Waldorf-Astoria hotel to see him. It proved another H. Whitney, but I got to see a Connersville man in the lobby. Strutting up and down from Peacock alley to the ladies tea room was one Quiney Adam Mount, with the air of a head waiter. Faultlessly attired with his premature gray hair, he looked every inch a typical Knickerbocker. He was here the guest of Mr. and Mrs. John Jameson. Mr. Jameson is the husband of Normandie Cristie, the great actress, who I think is a niece of Mrs. Will Havens at home. I had quite a chat with them and met them several times afterwards when I went to cover banquet stories.

Also met Carl Morris here. He dropped in the Herald office to see me on his arrival. From a musical critic here in the office I learned that Carl occupies an enviable and big position here in the musical world—and that's going some in a city as great as New York, especially when one stops to think that but a few years ago, Don Carlos was dishing out carpet tacks in Mauzy & Denning's basement. It is an honor to know such a prominent young man here.

Was up to the Metropolitan art gallery the other day to get a little story on the Dutch pictures there. They were lent by J. Peierpont Morgan. In a way, it reminded me of Gabe Smith's gallery at a count of the contrast. And then they have no Annias club there.

The thing I miss here more than any other and that is the good and far superior barbers and barber shops in Rushville. I was always just a bit "finicky" about barbers and here they are Italians (almost every place I have struck)—and none of them start with Prof. Brown or Dave Ferguson in their hey-day.

Another link missing in the chain of happiness and bliss is the absence of those good Demmer's Bonds! (This is not a commercial edition, understand, neither do I get advertising rates for this copy; it is merely a statement of facts.) One cannot get anything that even looks like a cigar, much less smells and smokes like one, for less than ten or fifteen cents. And the ten cent cigars are the same quality as the Bonds. It is the only instance of exorbitant prices I find here.

There is a fallacy existing about New York being an expensive place to live. One can live as cheaply as they want to and as expensively as they please. And the beauty of it all is, that no one knows (or cares) how you live. You don't have to four-flush.

When I leave the office at night (or rather about two or three in the morning,) I often walk through one of the near-by parks. Hundreds and thousands of men can be found asleep in them on the benches. They tie newspapers about their legs and body and then sink off into the arms of Morpheus. Whenever I can find one awake I stop and sit down and talk to him. It is most interesting to meet these fellows. They come from all walks of life, some of them college graduates. Some are there through choice, other by misfortune, some by drink and not a few of them just laying around waiting for the final summons, without any aim, care or hope in life. Nearly all the parks are filled every night. I wonder where they sleep in the winter time. They probably work.

On Sunday mornings I go to the West Side police court where from one to two hundred men and women picked up on Saturday night are arraigned. And all by one magistrate. It goes through with a biff and bang. There are many tales of pathos poured forth in this tribunal, but I am sent to write a humorous story of the funny incidents. Generally get a column or two. Have a comic artist with me and when I tell him what one strikes my funny bone, he makes sketches of them. A morning in that court is a liberal education to any individual.

Mrs. Arch Millikan of Indianapolis who came over with my wife and family, has just returned home after spending a delightful ten days seeing New York and hanging pictures. We live in a locality known as Washington Heights and the park nearby is as wild as the suburbs of Moscow—a beautiful residence district of fine apartment houses. It is "only" one hundred and fifty blocks from the Herald office, but coming down at noon to go to work (which requires twenty-five minutes in the subway) is most pleasantly spent reading the Rushville Daily Republican. That I enjoy the paper goes without saying. It is better than it ever was—which is going some for a small town in Indiana. The fellows around the office were surprised to see such a breezy and metropolitan paper coming from an "obscure" town in Indiana.

I am stuck on my job here—and also on the town. Without a doubt it is the greatest place ever. I generally write one big story every day and then I have the remainder of my time at my desk writing a column or so of "alleged" funny stuff which is illustrated by an artist.

Am interested in your boom—hope the old town will grow like a cancer and its growth will be as hard to check.

TOM J. GERAGHTY.

The Vaudeur has an unusually good program to offer tonight in the film, "Love and Law." The subject is one of Selig's best productions and is said to be a very high class drama with a very interesting plot. Don Rogers will sing the illustrated song, "Remember I Love You."

The management of the Palace theater will have a change of program tonight.

The Star-Grand offers another Biograph picture tonight entitled "A Fair Exchange," which is a free adaptation of George Eliott's "Silas Marner." After all, God's most precious gift is the little child. Our darkest moments are brightened by the child's advent. Their presence dissipates all sorrow, and sheds sunshine where clouds shaded, for the mantle of darkness that shadowed the world in the beginning was dispelled by the Child of Bethlehem. Such was the experience of old Silas Marner, to whom, when the world seemed the darkest the little child appeared. Earl Robertson will sing "Primrose Goodbye."

Why We Advocate Fall Painting

Because in the fall the weather is more uniformly warm and sunny and more settled.
Because in the fall paint can be more successfully applied than in damp, cloudy or unsettled weather.
Because in the fall there are usually no dust-laden, insect carrying winds.
Because in the fall the wood is dry and the paint penetrates deeper, securing a firmer hold on it.

O'Leary dodged the blow and jumped out of the way as the foreman rushed. Again the foreman came at him, but the assistant grabbed an iron bar and stood ready.
"You take another step and I'll brain you!" he yelled above the roar and the clang of the tolling hammers. "You're drunk, and we're saving your job for you. Now you tend to it or I'll smash your head clean in."
Smith stopped, grumbling. He knew O'Leary was the strongest, coolest young fellow about the works. A fight with him sober would have been serious, and drunk the foreman knew he would not stand a chance. He stepped back.

"I'm tending to my job, O'Leary," he complained, half maudlin. "There ain't no call for you acting that way. You're trying to get my job, that's what. I'm doing right—just what I was told. Now, you let me alone."
"Sure, O'Leary, let him alone," urged the other men. "He'll come round, and we'll get the gun out on time."
Before more could be said an office boy appeared, coming from the front office.

"They want you in the office, O'Leary. Hustle up," he said; "it's important."
Out in the office Lucy Smith was explaining vigorously to the stenographer, Mazie O'Brien, that Smith, in charge of the Sommers gun, was drunk on the job, and his wife, fearing something might happen, had sent the girl over to beg O'Leary to take care of him.

"Sure, Lucy, that's all right. Of course O'Leary will do it for you," the good natured stenographer encouraged. "I'll just get out and give you a chance at him when he comes. When are you going to get married, anyhow?"
Lucy blushed and hesitated.
"I don't know exactly," she said. "We haven't talked much about it."
Mazie O'Brien smiled.
"Well, it's about time you're getting busy with that line of conversation, I think. Don't do to trust any of these steel hands. Two weeks is long enough for any girl to be engaged. I'll get out now and leave you alone," she ended as O'Leary, astonishment and worry showing on his begrimed face, entered the office.

"What's the matter, Lucy?" he asked anxiously.
The girl turned to him with eagerness.
"It's about father. Is he very bad?" The man hesitated.
"Well, he's got a few drinks in," he confessed at last. "But there hasn't been much trouble up to date."
"He's pretty ugly, ain't he?" asked the girl.
O'Leary laughed grimly.
"You know what your dad is when he's drunk, Lucy. He's tried to pick one or two scraps tonight, but the men are keeping away from him. I'll do my best to keep down trouble, you know that, Lucy."
The girl nodded.
"Yes, I know, Joe, you're mighty good," she said, "but if anything happens tonight you know he'll lose his job sure. I'm awful afraid, and mother's worse than I am, so I just came over to get you to look out for him. Is he doing his work all right?"
O'Leary shook his head regretfully.
"That's what bothers me," he confessed. "The Sommers gun 's been in the fire too long now. If it don't come out of the furnace soon the gun 'll be no good at all."
The girl made a hopeless gesture.
"What do you think of that?" she complained. "And he's the best man over here when he's sober. Can't you do anything, Joe?"
"I am doing all I can," he urged, as though in justification, "but if that gun 's put in the oil bath after being too long in the fire the tempering will be bad."
Lucy wrung her hands despairingly.
"Let's get Mr. Marsh," she begged.
"Mr. Pinckney ain't here, but Mr. Marsh can take dad off the job and keep him from ruining everything. Sommers is such a nice man, too, and Miss Frances likes him. Oh, what are we looking to do, Joe?"
O'Leary looked at her blankly. The situation was too much for him to

SOCIETY WOMEN'S HAIR

Nowadays every up-to-date woman has radiant hair.

What a foolish creature a woman would be if she lost the opportunity to add to her attractions.

In Paris most women have beautiful hair, and in America all women who use Parisian Sage have lustrous and luxuriant hair.

Any woman reader of the Daily Republican can have attractive and lustrous hair in a few day's time by using this great hair rejuvenator, Parisian Sage.

manage.
"Marsh's acting funny, too," he complained. "He must know how Smith is, but he keeps away and don't say nothing to him. Guess he's afraid."
"Maybe I could go in and beg him. Couldn't I do that, Joe?" pleaded the girl.

She turned and started for the door which led into the works, but before she could reach it the door was pushed open and Smith, drunker and more enraged than ever, lurched into the office. At sight of Lucy and O'Leary together he straightened up, caught hold of the door a moment for support, then burst on them with a torrent of anger.

"What are you doing here?" he roared. "Why did you come in this office, Lucy? What business you got here, O'Leary? Ain't I seeing you hanging around my house enough without getting that girl in the office?"
"I—I've got your dinner, father. I brought it over to you," faltered Lucy.
"And why didn't you bring it to me right?" he shouted. "And why do you let this fellow in the office here be talking to you?"

"Joe's all right, father," the girl urged. "He don't want you to make no mistake with the Sommers gun, that's all."
The drunken foreman turned on his assistant with fury.
"Oh, you don't don't you! Look here, you keep that mug of yours out of my affairs or I'll break it. Do you hear?"

But Joe O'Leary did not come of the race that could be bluffed. As Smith lurched toward him, the assistant straightened into a position of defense, waiting for him.

"Don't waste your breath trying to scare me, Smith," he shouted. "You'd better be getting that gun out of the fire before it spoils."

The sudden opposition sobered the drunken man for a moment.

"I got a fine assistant, ain't I?" he sneered. "Trying to tell me my business. I know what you're up to. You sneaked in here to talk to her; that's what you did. Now, you keep away from her after this, I tell you. Don't you come near her or I'll break you in two."

O'Leary looked the larger man up and down with fine Irish scorn.
"Break me in two?" he sneered. "If you was to break me in two either piece of me would get up and knock your block off. I tell you, if you ever lay a hand on me I'll kill you."

In a wild fury Smith rushed unsteadily. O'Leary landed once, staggering the big man, and then Lucy rushed in between them.

"Father! Joe! Don't!" she begged. "You'll both be discharged."

The jarring, staggering blow had knocked a little of the fight out of the bully. He still had sense enough to know that in an even battle his young, strong assistant would have a good chance, and, like most bullies, he didn't care for even battles. The plea of Lucy gave him a chance to change the direction of his anger.

"Discharged!" he yelled. "Who'll discharge me? I can clean out the whole works, and I!"

He was lurching about the office, swinging his arms wildly in time to his drunken threats, when the street door opened and Pinckney came in hastily. In a moment the manager saw that something was wrong.

"What's the meaning of this?" he demanded sharply, stepping forward.

Again the current of Smith's rage had found an object to dash against. All sense of discipline and fear of consequences was gone from him. Then, besides, down in his heart he knew that Pinckney needed him and would scarcely dare to discharge him at this time. Instead of replying he heaved himself over until he stood face to face with the general manager.

"Do you think I'm afraid of you?" he demanded drunkenly.

Pinckney paid no attention to him, but turned and pressed the bell. When he spoke it was to the assistant.

"What are you doing here, O'Leary?"

"Nothing, sir."

"Then get to work," ordered Pinckney sharply.

O'Leary hesitated.

"I can't leave Lucy with him," he said, jerking his head toward Smith.

Pinckney nodded.

"I understand, but that's all right. You go back to work. I'll look after her."

"Yes, Joe, please go when he tells you," urged Lucy.

O'Leary nodded.

"All right; I'm going," he said. He reached the door, then turned and spoke threateningly to the drunken foreman. "See here, Smith, if you touch that girl I'll kill you, and don't you forget it!"

Before Lucy's father could reply he turned and slammed the door after him.

Smith whirled, lurched toward Lucy with his hand upraised, but Pinckney stepped in front of him.

"Here, here, Smith!" commanded the manager sharply. "You've got no time for fooling. Remember, I put you in charge of the Sommers gun."

Smith straightened and leered with a drunken assumption of sarcasm.

"What if you did? Ain't it being done to suit you?"

"Of course it is. I haven't complained, have I?"

The foreman thrust his own face against that of the general manager.

"You'd better not complain!" he sneered threateningly. "I guess I know what's wanted of me."

Pinckney nodded.

"I'm sure you do, Smith," he said blandly. "I have every confidence in you; now go and look out for that gun, and remember, until that job's out of the way you're boss. Don't let anybody interfere with you!"

The foreman shook one of his big arms.

"If any one interferes with me you know what they'll get," he roared. "You can bet your life on that, and one of them is going to get it quick."

Still muttering threats, he turned and staggered out of the works. Pinckney looked sharply at Lucy.

"You go home and stay there," he said.

The girl hesitated. Fear of what might happen with her father drunk and in charge of such important work gave her unusual courage.

"Excuse me, Mr. Pinckney, but father isn't himself. Do you think it safe to have him in charge tonight?"

The manager frowned so savagely that Lucy trembled.

"Oh, that's what brought you here, was it? You came over to manage the works, did you?" he sneered.

"I was afraid—that gun"—repeated the girl.

Pinckney broke in on her savagely.

"Well, the next time you keep your fears home. When I need you to look out for the works here I'll send for you. Now get out."

He turned from the frightened girl to the office boy, who at last had answered his ring.

"Send Marsh to my private office."

And without another look at the frightened girl the manager strode into his private office and slammed the door. Lucy, crushed and beaten, fearful that she had only made matters worse by coming, was hurrying out when the door from the works again opened, and Joe O'Leary, blood streaming down his face, staggered across the threshold and fell into a chair, gasping:

"He got me."

MILLIONS OF LIVES LOST
An Awful Toll Collected by Consumption. Many Unnecessary Deaths From This Disease.

If people could only understand that systematic catarrh is an internal disease that external applications cannot cure, they would not need to be warned so often about this malady, which, when neglected, paves the way oftentimes for consumption, at the cost of millions of lives every year. Yet catarrh may be cured, if the right treatment is employed.

Catarrh is caused by a general disease state of the system which leads commonly to annoying and perhaps serious local conditions, which may prove a fertile breeding ground for germs of consumption. External remedies give but temporary ease.

The only way to successfully treat catarrh is by employing a medicine which is absorbed and carried by the blood to all parts of the system, so that the mucous membrane or internal lining of the body is toned up and made capable of resisting the infection of consumption and other disease.

We have a remedy prepared from the prescription of a physician who for thirty years studied and made catarrh a specialty, and whose record was a patient restored to health in every case where his treatment was followed as prescribed. That remedy is Rexall Mucu-Tone. We are so positive that it will completely overcome catarrh in all its various forms, whether acute or chronic, that we promise to return every penny paid us for the medicine in every case where it fails or for any reason does not satisfy the user.

We want you to try Rexall Mucu-Tone on our recommendation and guarantee. We are right here where you live, and you do not contract any obligation or risk when you try Rexall Mucu-Tone on our guarantee. We have Rexall Mucu-Tone in two sizes, 50 cents and 1.00. Very often the taking of one 50-cent bottle is sufficient to make a marked impression upon the case. Of course in chronic cases a longer treatment is necessary. The average in such instances is three $1.00 bottles. Remember you can obtain Rexall Remedies in Rushville only at our store,—The Rexall Store. Lytle's Drug Store.

A Valuable Booklet Free.

Any person who will call at F. E. Wolcott's drug store will be given a little booklet written by an eminent authority. Every family has one or more persons who have eczema, pimples, dandruff, ring worm, tetter, prickly heat, hives or some form of skin or scalp disease. This booklet is written in such a plain, simple manner that any person after a perusal of it can tell what is the matter with them and can at once proceed to get a simple home treatment that will destroy the germ life that causes the disease, and in this way effect a complete cure of any form of skin or scalp disease.

An antiseptic salve, one that heals, soothes and cleanses, is Painsalve Carbolyzed. It is unequalled for cuts, burns and bruises. Sold by Lytle's Drug Store.

AIR TRIP FOR HELEN KELLER
Charles J. Glidden to Test Blind Deaf Mute's Skill as a Balloon Pilot.
When Charles J. Glidden of Boston takes Miss Helen Adams Keller, the most famous blind deaf mute woman in the world, for a two hours' flight in his balloon, he will attempt to obtain a practical answer to the following question:—Is a deaf, dumb and blind person better fitted to pilot a balloon than one endowed with all the normal senses?
What Miss Keller's experience may prove to be and what sensations she undergoes while drifting among the clouds may contribute toward solving the problem that has been raised of late as to the possible effects of aerodynamics upon the psychology and physical nature of persons.

For a long time Miss Keller has wondered what air flights may be, and from her quiet home in Wrentham, Mass., she has followed the records of aviation.

Miss Keller has long been in the public eye owing to her peculiar ailments and her wonderful literary progress under almost insurmountable difficulties. She was born at Tuscumbia, Ala., June 27, 1880. While a baby she was seized with an illness that rendered her deaf, dumb and blind, but after reaching girlhood she was placed under the care of Miss Anne Mansfield Sullivan, who was able, in a measure, by special tuition to restore her speech. Miss Keller entered Radcliffe college in 1900 and was graduated A. B. in 1904. Her book, "The Story of My Life," was published in 1902. She is descended on her father's side from Alexander Spotswood, a colonial governor of Virginia, and through her mother is related to the Adams and Everett families.

RAIN COULDN'T KEEP 'EM AWAY

Detroit Fans Turn Out Regardless of Weather.

SAW HOME TEAM DEFEATED

By a Score of 8 to 6 the Pittsburgh Team Took the Third Game in the World's Championship Series, Thus Giving Them the Lead Over Their Rivals—The Latter, However, Gave So Good an Account of Themselves That It Is Apparent They Are Far From a Hopelessly Defeated Team.

Detroit, Oct. 12.—By the score of 8 to 6 Pittsburgh defeated Detroit yesterday afternoon in one of the most spectacular and fiercely contested games ever played in a world's championship series. This gives Pittsburgh the margin of two games to one in the series, and the National League champions are correspondingly jubilant. Detroit, however, showed in the final innings of the battle that it is far from a hopelessly beaten team. Weather conditions were frightful. Rain fell frequently during the nine innings, several times in hard showers of several minutes' duration. Despite the wretched weather the attendance, 18,277, broke all local records for the world's series.

Pittsburg jumped into the lead immediately, scoring five runs in the first inning. They batted Summers out of the box, aided by some poor fielding. Another run in the second inning gave Pittsburg a lead to 6 to 0, and the game then appeared to be safe for the visitors. Detroit, however, came to the fore with one of the gamest rallies ever made and scored four runs in the seventh inning, beating Maddox hard and playing brilliantly. With the score 6 to 4 Pittsburg connected with some of Works' curves in the ninth for two runs.

With the score 8 to 4 against it, the Detroit team did not even then realize that it was beaten, and smashed out two runs in the last inning. Had Sam Crawford been able to hit up to his usual mark there might have been a different story to tell.

Detroit outbatted Pittsburg by a margin of one hit, getting 12 to the winners' 11. Summers started for the locals, but was removed before the end of the first inning. Willett succeeded him and did well until he was taken out to allow McIntyre to bat for him in the seventh. McIntyre struck out. Works, who then went in, was lucky in the eighth, after Abstein had made a two-base hit, with but one out. The next two were easy outs. In the ninth Pittsburg landed on him for three hits and that clinched the game for them.

Maddox was on the rubber for Pittsburg and was hit hard in the closing inning, although Detroit could do nothing with him in the early sessions. When the American Leaguers did start to hit him they landed hard and often, but Manager Clarke left Maddox in because of the lead his team had.

The mighty Hans Wagner was the star of the game, but he was forced to share some of the stellar honors with Owen Bush and Deleahanty of the locals. Wagner made four hits and stole four bases, although Catcher Schmidt was not to blame for at least one of the thefts. Besides his hitting and base running, Wagner played an admirable game in the field. Bush and Deleahanty were the bright spots on the Detroit team in batting, while Cobb and Crawford made great catches during the course of the game.

English Suffragettes Given No Chance to Offer Explanation.

Newcastle-on-Tyne, Oct. 12.—The suffragettes who were arrested on Saturday for disturbances during the speech of Lloyd George, chancellor of the exchequer, were dealt with severely in the magistrate's court here. Two of them, including Lady Constance Lytton, were sentenced to a month's hard labor. Lady Constance Lytton was charged with creating a disorder. The magistrate refused to listen to any attempts of the women to vindicate their actions of Saturday, and cut their explanations off ruthlessly.

SHOT GRAZES HEAD WHILE AUTO RIDING

Narrow Escape of Elwood Railway Superintendent.

Elwood, Ind., Oct. 12.—When a man with a shotgun stepped out from a clump of trees at South P and Twentieth streets, and shot at D. D. Edmunds, superintendent of the Elwood, Anderson & Lapel railway, what is believed to have been an attempt to assassinate Thomas O'Brien, district manager of the American Sheet and Tin Plate company occurred.

Mr. Edmunds was driving an automobile, and the shot grazed the hair on the back of his head and caused a slight abrasion of the skin. He got a good view of the would-be assassin, but he ran before Edmunds could stop his machine and return to the place where the shooting occurred. Mr. Edmunds thinks he was mistaken for Mr. O'Brien, from the fact that their machines are similar in appearance, and in the darkness the railroad man might easily be taken for the tin plate works manager.

Scurrilous circulars were distributed about the city Saturday, giving the definition of a "scab" as set out by the courts of England. It is believed here that the mind of a strike sympathizer was inflamed by this circular and that he tried to put the manager out of the way in the hope of ending the strike here.

Mr. Edmunds is a quiet and unobtrusive man. He has no known enemies here and is in no way connected with the strike other than that his road handles all the material in and out of the tin plate mills. The police have not been able to get a clue to the would-be assassin.

PEOPLE LAUGH AND THE CHEER

of this song was greeted with great applause, especially the chorus which contained the words "Boost for Rushville and it will march along."

Will L. Newbold next explained the objects and work of the Y. M. C. C. He spoke of the numerically small beginning of the organization, when three young men, Howard Mullin, John Demmer and Clarence Cross, started out only a short time ago to form the organization which had swiftly grown to large proportions and had stirred up the activities and public spirit of the community as nothing before had ever done. "You see its culmination," he said, "in this large and enthusiastic meeting here tonight of citizens who have met with a strong determination in their souls to make a greater and a better Rushville." To do this, he said, it would be necessary for each one to do his part, to do something, to lend something to the movement. He believed if this were done there was no reason why the prediction of Rushville, 15,000 in 1912, could not be fulfilled. The young men whose first meeting was originally held in the sheriff's office had a great and noble purpose in mind, he said. They have believed and now believe that you will co-operate with them. Will you disappoint them? The only interest they have had is that of enlightened self interest in realizing results in which you will all share. In the benefits that will accrue to Rushville, you will all share. It means an increase of opportunities to everybody in and about Rushville. The organization, he said, had nothing it wished to cover up from the citizens of this community. There were reasons, he explained, why the manufacturers who had contracted to locate here objected to their names or the names of their plants being published in the newspapers. He pointed out that pressure would be brought to bear upon them to remain. There was no graft in the movement, he declared. Information would be cheerfully given to citizens at Y. M. C. C. headquarters, he said.

James E. Watson was the next name on the program. W. H. Ogan announced that he had a telegram from Mr. Watson announcing his regrets at his inability to get home in time to attend the meeting and expressing his good wishes for the success of the meeting and his hearty good will for the emphatic success of the movement and the lot sale.

Lieut. Gov. Frank J. Hall was next called. He first paid a tribute to the good singing of the ladies' glee club. He said that he came to Rushville when it was only a town of 1400, counted the various stages of its growth and mentioned the different additions which had been laid out. The county of Rush, he declared, had no superior among the counties of the State for its resources and for the high state of cultivation of its lands and for the intelligence and genuine worth of the people. He spoke of the activity and resourcefulness of the people of Rushville in recuperating from the effects of the fire of 1892 which destroyed some of Rushville's industries and the manner in which the people came to the assistance of these. Some of the factories which are now in the heart of the city were then on the outskirts. A greater prosperity, he predicted, was just being started for Rushville than the people had heretofore dreamed of. A county of the high standing of Rush, one of the very best in the State, he declared, should have a county seat commensurate with its importance. It was a matter which all, rich and poor alike, should interest themselves in. The lots to be sold were placed at a fair price, he said. The money derived from the sale was not to be donated to the factories, but would accrue as a permanent fund through the preferred stock plan. He was pleased, he said, with Mr. Newbold's speech and explanation. It was a greater and better opportunity than the people of Rushville had ever before, he believed. He spoke of the increasing opportunity that would come to the young ladies. He said that more people would come here and among them would be men of marriageable qualifications, thus increasing the opportunity for some of the unmarried ladies. This remark was greeted with great laughter. In closing Lieut. Gov. Hall spoke of the great usefulness of such an organization as the Y. M. C. C. to Rushville; he believed its members had the genuine welfare of Rushville at heart and hoped it would last forever as an important factor for bettering the conditions of all citizens in and about Rushville.

Mayor Cowing announced that Capt. J. K. Gowdy was sick and had to be content with telephoning his best wishes for the success of the meeting and the movement.

The Rev. Walter J. Cronin, next on program, facetiously remarked that he would not talk long lest he should intrude upon the territory of others whose speeches he had written. (?) Alluding to Lieut. Gov. Hall's remark about the increased opportunity for the ladies, he said that the committee of which he was a member had a line on a shirt waist factory which would give Mr. Hall an increased opportunity. He was glad the movement which had started in the sheriff's office had not wound up in the manner in which some people and some things did which came in contact with sheriffs. "In this work," he said, "we assure you we are in earnest for the betterment of Rushville and whatever help you can extend will be most graciously received." Speaking eloquently of this community as one of high standards, he advised the people to plant the seeds of a yet greater prosperity by putting their dollars into the lots of the factory addition. Father Cronin's address was received with tumultuous applause, and his sallies of wit with great laughter.

The next address to follow was that of the Rev. W. C. Meyers. He said that he liked to see things move. The Y. M. C. C. organization was moving Rushville up to a higher and a better plane. It is one, he declared, which deserved the united and enthusiastic support of every citizen. He believed that citizens would put their shoulders to the wheel and invest some of their money for these lots, inasmuch as the price was fair, the movement a commendable one to get a permanent fund for the betterment of all citizens alike.

The last address was from W. H. Ogan, who with Col. Woods is obtaining factories for Rushville. He mentioned the grit of a little fellow from Rushville who maintained in an argument a good many years ago that Rushville was a better town than Indianapolis and was ready to fight for it. He hoped that this spirit of standing up for Rushville would be manifested in the lot sale.

Mr. Ogan explained that the proceeds from the sale of the lots would be held by a trustee appointed by the Y. M. C. C. to be kept for the common good of all citizens of Rushville; that instead of the factories receiving donations, a part of the money as needed to be used thus would be applied by the club in the purchase of as much preferred stock as was necessary; that when the owners of certain factories bought this preferred stock, paying therewith the 6 per cent interest accrued, the money would go back to the Y. M. C. C. to be again thus used for the purchase of preferred stock in getting other factories. He did not think there would be need to hold another lot sale here to obtain such funds. Other towns had paid bonuses. Rushville was not doing that. Mr. Ogan's remarks were vigorously applauded. The band played and the meeting adjourned.
